EDMONTON BULLETIN, NOV. 16, 1889.

INCORPORATION.

The advent of a railway into the Edmonton district cannot be many years distant, and if the information published by the Railway Age of Chicago, which is the best authority on Railway matters in America, is to be relied on, there is a probability of one reaching the North Saskatchewan by Christmas of 1890, and almost a certainty of one being here in two years. Of course in figuring on the building of a railway, or the movements of railway companies there is always a large amount of uncertainty to be taken into consideration, and many possibilities, any one of which might materially alter the prospects. One of these has been the way in which local companies have in the past gambled with the charters, and endeavored to enrich themselves in this way, rather than by building the roads and making their profits by their earnings. The fact that the C. P. R. is now extending branch lines north of the main line and putting such energy into their work, is evidence that they at any rate believe that the other road or roads projected in this direction mean business. The report recently published in the public press that the Dominion government will forbid the Northern Pacific entering the territories is no doubt false. The lesson taught them in Manitoba a year ago will not be so soon forgotten. They have now admitted this foreign corporation into the country and it would be something they dare not do, even if they had the desire, to confine them to the province of Manitoba. After their experience of a year ago they are not likely to provoke another disturbance by refusing a railroad entry into a district of the Territories as yet unsettled and from which, owing to its isolation, very little if any direct benefit have been received. If the Northern Pacific apply for a charter and land grant it will likely get it, and if they are refused, it will do as much to arouse the west to secure for themselves responsible government and provincial powers, which will carry with it the right to charter lines of railway within its boundary, as the disallowance of local charters did in rousing the people of Manitoba to demand free trade in railways, a demand that was, even though reluctantly, acceded to. It is possible however that under pressure from the C. P. R. the authorities may hamper and retard in every way the Northern Pacific for a sufficient length of time to allow the former road to build their line into and along the Saskatchewan River country and secure this territory as far as it can for itself. But even though this should be done the country is too large and fertile in natural richness and products to make it possible for one railway line to serve it and following hard on its heels will be another, made necessary by the needs of the army of settlers who will come in with a rush! In any event however the C. P. R. will be hurried through and railway facilities given to this country in the near future. The vital question to this town will be, after a railway is assured, where will it cross the river, down from Edmonton, at this point or above. There is no shutting our eyes to the possibility of Edmonton being left some miles from the track. It is true we have influential men, wealth, and all the claims that a district metropolis can put forward, and they may secure what we want. The river can be crossed at almost any point on it, a road will cost but little more to build through the Beaver hills than on the prairie, besides the advantages of having plenty of good timber for ties and telegraph poles on each side of the line, and as fine an agricultural and ranching district as the country has. The physical difficulties are therefore not serious and our prospects are as favorable as any. But yet the people whose all are at stake and who have so many vested interests in Edmonton cannot afford to neglect taking every precaution in their power to make the crossing at Edmonton a sure thing. The best way to do this would be for the town to incorporate and work through their town council. An incorporated town would certainly have more influence and could hold out much better inducements and represent the state of affairs much better than a settlement lacking in organization. Besides there are many other advantages to be derived from being incorporated, principal among which would be in securing some system of fire protection, of which there is now absolutely none, nor is there likely to be until the place becomes organized into a town. It may appear premature to bring this question forward, with the railroad still hundreds of miles away, and a winter season intervening, but as it takes some time to incorporate a town and get things after the incorporation, in working shape, it might be wise to begin making all necessary arrangements now and so be ready when the time does come.

The Regina Leader is out on a crusade against Commissioner Hercher of the mounted police. In its issue of October 29th, it states that instead of inspiring respect he inspires contempt and hatred, that he acts as if the police force was a private institution, in the management of which he has only to think of the whims, caprices, and passions, of an excitable, vain, and vulgar mind; that he plays the bully on all occasions that he dares, and winds up a half column editorial as follows: "Now we ask the government whether it is a fit thing that a low, violent, and half crazy malignant, should be at the head of a force like this!"

In its issue of November 6th, it formulates its charges and calls for a searching enquiry into the conduct of Lucene Hercher. These are the charges. 1. We say he does not know his business and cannot put the men through their facings without having a slip of paper prepared for him with the words of command. 2. We charge him with tyranny to officers and men. 3. With interfering with the medical men in the treatment of their patients. 4. With untruthfulness in dealings with defaulters. 5. With inaugurating a system by which men drink away their pay before they get it. 6. With using for himself and family, the institution, of which he is the head in the Territories, as if it was a private matter pertaining to himself. 7. With yielding to his prejudices against certain nationalities—French Canadians, Irishmen, Scotchmen, English speaking Canadian, all nationalities except one. 8. With forcing police officers who are magistrates to act contrary to their consciences. 9. With illegally awarding punishment on evidence not taken before him, imprisoning men he has never seen, contrary to the statute." A correspondent from Battleford in the same issue charges him with dealing unfairly with tenders for police supplies by making known the lowest tender and soliciting individuals or other tenders to do the work for less and giving the contract to them if they consent. An action has been entered against him by a Calgary lawyer for assault and abuse during the visit of Lord Stanley to that town recently. These taken altogether make it appear as though the commissioner is not the man for a place of responsibility. If the charges are false then there is an opportunity for a first class case of criminal libel against the Leader, but if they are true, either all or in part, then the sooner this man has been brought home to him and ousted from the head of a large department of the public service the better it will be for the service he controls, and the powers that placed him where he is.

The Calgary Herald under the heading "Whiskey Spilling," has the following re the late whiskey seizures in Calgary. "But with the system of seizing and spilling liquor we have a quarrel. There are places far distant where the liquor seized there could be sold without the violation of any law, and the money received for it applied to some charitable purpose. It could not take Sir John more than an hour if he will set his mind about it to devise a plan for the disposal of seized whiskey and the application of the proceeds to a general hospital fund for the Territories—Alberta wants a live general at Ottawa who combines a knowledge of this and other questions affecting the Territories both from an eastern and western standpoint." Whiskey was spilled in Calgary because it was unlawful, it was made unlawful because it was believed to be injurious, which the Herald admits. If it is injurious to the individual to drink it east of the mountains it would not lessen its evil effects to have it run down somebody's throat on the west side and the only place where it is not likely to do any injury is on the ground. And besides the government by spilling it does not turn itself into a dealer in contraband whiskey, and the benevolent institution would not always have the humiliation of looking back to any such ignominious birth. The people of the Territories we imagine have not reached that depth to have to resort to trading in contraband whiskey to raise money to build an hospital with.
